

ARTEMIS RESEARCH

Artemis Research conducts technology-focused due diligence and risk analysis for companies and government agencies to prevent the theft, diversion, and misuse of exports and intellectual property.

We live in a complex, dynamic world. Geopolitical conflicts lead to trade restrictions and disrupted value chains. Intellectual property (IP) theft and export diversion not only undermine a company's financial viability and reputation, but also exacerbate the instability leading to these restrictions. Artemis Research arms clients with vital information to address these challenges. We specialize in recognizing illicit activity within a sea of information, leveraging disparate data sets and innovative search methodologies to uncover previously unidentified threats to your business. Finally, we understand the nuances of geopolitical trends affecting global trade and are fluent in the technical language of the clients we serve.

Our Experience: We offer over 15 years of US Government experience providing expert guidance in export control and IP theft investigations, advising on the security implications of technology trends and promoting more effective due diligence, supply chain protection, and personnel reliability programs. Areas of expertise include sanctions evasion, illicit shipping networks, threat finance, export controls, IP protection, counterproliferation, and emerging technology.

Reasons for Due Diligence in the Technology Sector:

- Intellectual Property Protection
- Risk of Tariffs and Trade Restrictions
- Regulatory Compliance
- Geopolitical Instability
- Business Continuity Planning

Artemis Research Provides:

- Due Diligence on Suppliers, Customers, Contractors, and Partners
- Value Chain Mapping and Analysis
- Geopolitical Risk Assessment
- Regulatory Compliance Monitoring
- Scenario Planning and Crisis Response
- Training on Export Controls and Illicit Procurement Indicators

Contact Us:

info@artemisresearchgroup.com | +1 202-524-0304 | artemisresearchgroup.com

